LONDON, SATURDAY, May 15, 1731. NUMB. LVII.

On VANITY; with some Characters which may happen to be the Reader's own.

THERE is not any one Diſeaſe of the Mind more univerſal or more prejudicial to Mankind, than Vanity. It proceeds from the Flattery of one's own Heart, and the Pride of being eſteem'd conſiderable: 'Tis made the Balance of all our Defects, and the Foundation of our Excellencies. Whatever we want in Merit, Vanity ſupplies; and we are as well ſatisfied with the Addition, as if Virtue and Wiſdom were the only Compoſition of our Ch r cters. Hence ariſes that univerſal Complacency that all Mankind have for themſelves: Hence, Men are ſatisfied with their Underſtandings, and Women with their Forms. Hence, we puſh ourſelves forward into the Eye of the World, grow impatient to be admir'd, and fancy we appear of as much Importance to others, as we do to ourſelves. This is the Motive of Dreſs, Show, and Faſhion in general. Oſtentation and Vanity are Twins, and Flattery is the common Object of their Admiration. Theſe Figures generally appear in a Groupe together, and are ſeen as often as the Sexes ſee one another.——Yet however frequent and epidemic the Influence of Vanity be, 'tis as ſeldom known that Merit is its Companion. Not that Men of Senſe are free from a Conſciouſneſs of their own Abilities; but they make Uſe of it only as a Motive or Impulſe to th ir own Improvement, and the Exerciſe of thoſe Abilities in the Service of others; but the Child of Vanity makes his own Conceit the Meaſure of his Value, and then would bully your Judgment into his Favour. He preſumes you are already ſenſible of the Figure he deſerves to make, and that you are oblig'd to treat him accordingly. He is like thoſe People who beg the Queſtion in Argumentation, and yet triumph in a Concluſion that has only Falſhood for its Baſis.——Look round the World, travel over the Country, examine the City, ſurvey every Face, and this Self-Satisfaction is apparent in every Feature: We are naturally prompted to it, and ſhould eſteem it unkind if any one ſhould endeavour to take it away. This is the true Reaſon why Advice is reliſh'd ſo ill: We take it for Impertinence to be inform'd, inſtructed, or reprov'd. No, no! we are right already; we are wiſe enough: We know as much as any Body; perhaps more: 'Tis an Affront to doubt it; 'tis Inſolence in you to pretend to know better. On the other Side, the Adviſer takes a Pleaſure in believing himſelf the Superior; he diſplays his Wit, his Temper, his Learning, his Philoſophy, for what? to compliment his own Pride, and loſe his Friend for preſuming to think himſelf the Wiſer.

Perhaps I ſhall be very much cenſur'd if I venture to inſinuate, that Vanity is little better than Phrenzy; and yet, if Loſs of Reaſon, or Wildneſs of Imagination are any Species of Madneſs, Vanity has as good a Title to it as either. The vain Man always forgets, or inſults his Companions, in Compliment to himſelf; and arrogates a Merit that is only ideal; that is to ſay, he takes his own good Qualities upon Truſt, and then reaſons upon them, as if they were undeniable Truths: He looks upon the reſt of Mankind as Creatures of an inferior Degree, and as falſly concludes they are to be treated in a Manner agreeable to that Opinion.——Now, what is this but abſolute Phrenzy, the Ravings of Bedlam, and a Diſtemper of the Brain? The Madman, in Chains of Darkneſs, only fancies himſelf a King; and preſumes he ought to be treated with the Reſpect that is due to Majeſty. They are but equally miſtaken in their firſt Principles; and in Conſequence, their Concluſions are but equally abſurd and vain. But 'tis poſſible the Fact may be diſputed: I may be told the World is not ſo fanciful as I paint it; and that Madneſs is ſtill to be confin'd within its uſual Bounds.——I wiſh I could be of the ſame Opinion; but I am apprehenſive they will be ſooner convinc'd than I.——Let us only ſuppoſe ourſelves in the MALL, during the fineſt Evening of the fineſt Seaſon of the Year; I'll only act as a REGISTER to the Characters that appear before me, and the bare Relation of their Extravagancies will not only juſtify my Doctrine, but make it plain as Demonſtration. It will not barely prove that three Fourths of them are mad with Vanity; but even that their Vanity is founded on ſuch Things, as are either no Excellency, or are to be abſolutely condemn'd, as what they ought to be aſham'd of.

Obſerve the firſt Figure that crowds into your View, with ſo much Pertneſs and Alacrity, with the whole Mode of Affectation, and the complete Airs of a Pretty-Fellow! You ſee, by that unmeaning Laugh, that Peculiarity of Geſture, he piques himſelf on being the firſt Vehicle of a new Faſhion from France, and the firſt Ape among his Country-Men of a new Species of Effeminacy.——Dreſs, Oſtentation, and the ſole View of being well with the Ladies, are the Foundations of this Creature's Pride: and yet, in the Vanity of his Heart, he deſpiſes all the reſt of humane Nature, as Things of no Taſte and Genius: Monſters of Rudeneſs and Barbariſm, that are unfit, as Hot-Spur has it, to come between the Wind and his Nobility.——Is not this Madneſs, my Friend? If not, 'tis Folly; and I leave the Beau to chuſe which of the two is the moſt in Faſhion.

The Ladies muſt excuſe us, if we take them in Turn into Conſideration. Some of them I am ſure have good Senſe enough to ſee, and acknowledge the Vanity of the reſt.——That ſtately Lady is the Idol for the Evening; ſhe is diſtinguiſh'd as the ſuperior Beauty by thoſe, who are mere Animals in Opinion, and judge only by Inſtinct. 'Tis well for her that ſhe has a greater Complaiſance for their Admiration than I.——If ſhe had not, ſhe would be a Stranger to the Pleaſure that now ſpirits every Feature, and calls out all her Graces.——She eſteem'd herſelf before, but one Remove from an Angel; but now, ſhe has flatter'd herſelf into a Goddeſs at once: She ſees no End of her Conqueſts, and is this Moment deaf to the Compliments that are made her, that ſhe may pauſe to look forward into Futurity, and pleaſe herſelf with a View of ſucceſſive Conqueſts, and the Power of giving Pain to Mankind.——Dear Creature! a beautiful jointed Baby is thy Rival; and if it could be animated, like PYGMALION's Statue, would have as good a Title to charm. Thou art certainly deſcended from that miraculous Coquet; and haſt inherited as many of her Perfections, as the GODS beſtow'd on OUT-SIDE only.——Certainly thy Pride is Madneſs; and they are as mad who adore thee!

Now, Sir, be ſo good as to remark that venerable Sage, with the formidable, black Peruke: Would not you believe him the very Mouth of Wiſdom, and Oracle of Underſtanding? I aſſure you that's his own Opinion, and he would think himſelf much injur'd, if you ſhould inſinuate the leaſt Syllable to the contrary: And yet this profound Philoſopher is a Creature, who has convers'd with Books theſe fifty Years, without being one Grain the wiſer; and is read in half the Languages of the Earth, without gathering from either the leaſt Addition of Knowledge: He is perfectly well vers'd in Words and Phraſes, Titles and Indexes, Editions and Commentators; but if you conſult him in the Meaning of either, you take him out of his Element, and diſcover a Mind, like a Bookſeller's Poſt, fill'd with a Catalogue of Authors, but ignorant of their Doctrines and Genius.—But yet this Book-Worm, this Inſect, who devours Learning without underſtanding it, is more proud of his Reading, than the vaineſt Author that ever fell in his Way; and is ever boaſting of the Library, that is a Satire on his Converſation.——What think you, Sir? Is ſuch a Man in his Senſes, or do I only dream to the contrary?

Make Way there for that demure Lady! that down-looking, reſerv'd Veſtal! Do you obſerve the ſettled Form of her Features, and the grave Compoſure of her Eye? To be ſure, you muſt believe her a MAGDALEN! that uncommon Modeſty, that forbidding Auſterity can promiſe no leſs!——But ſhall I be free with you? That very grave, modeſt Veſtal-looking Matron, is a downright Hypocrite, a ſupercillious Prude, who gives herſelf the Pain of appearing virtuous, and running thro' all the Forms of its Severity, in mere Complaiſance to Reputation, when ſhe hates, in her own Mind, every Feature of the Character, nor has any Idea of the Beauty of any Part of it.——'Tis owing to this averſion to her own Practice, that ſhe is ſo vain of the Sacrifice; and vaunts ſo often of the Temptations ſhe has reſiſted, and the Regularity ſhe has obſerv'd.——She believes ſuch an Air of Superiority is her Due, and lays Claim to that Pleaſure, in Exchange for another.——Surely, Sir, you won't diſpute her Diſtraction! To be vain of what ſhe never poſſeſs'd, is a Madneſs that nothing but her Pride can equal.

Let us conſider that Gentleman in his Pontificals.——Would you believe it poſſible for a Diſciple of the meek, and humble JESUS, to be proud, aſſuming, arrogant and vain? Can you imagine, that a Man, who ought to recommend Gentleneſs and Charity, is one of the moſt vindictive, and moſt preſuming of Mankind? Yes! that very reverend Prelate, who wears the Habit of Devotion, and the Veil of Sanctity, wears them only to tyrannize; and makes the Holineſs of his Character, a Pimp to his Vanity: That Man is proud only of being a Prieſt; and without any one Virtue to make him amiable, expects to be worſhipp'd, like the Golden Calf in the Wilderneſs.——Be impartial, Sir: Is not this a Fit of Lunacy? Yes ſurely! and without one ſingle Impulſe of the Divinity to recommend it.

Obſerve! thoſe ſweating Chairmen have juſt ſet down their Load, and, thro' a Line of fooliſh Lacqueys, a great Lady is juſt enter'd the Mall: With what a Port of Majeſty ſhe ſtruts along! With what a ſovereign Contempt ſhe ſurveys every Body about her! would not you think her a Roxalana? an Eaſtern Empreſs? a Being of a ſuperior Kind? What do you believe can be the Motive of this extraordinary Conceit? I'll tell you, Sir: the Anceſtors of this Lady are deſcended from the Conqueror; and have worn Titles for three or four hundred Years: She prides herſelf in their Grandeur, and thinks herſelf Great, becauſe they were ſo before her.——This is her higheſt Merit: the only Foundation of all her Glory.——This has led her to forget, that even this Grandeur itſelf ſprung from Obſcurity, and to deſpiſe the Virtue that creates Honour, as infinitely inferior to him, who only wears it by Deſcent to the tenth Generation.——I am poſitive no Body will make a Doubt of this Lady's unhappy Condition. To be vain of another Perſon's Acquiſitions, without making them the Example of our own, is to live on the Nouriſhment of Yeſterday; and I am of Opinion, whoever would attempt to follow ſuch a Scheme, would be touch'd with the moſt pardonable Madneſs of the two.

The Inconſtant; or the Way to win him. A Song.

I.

HOW tormenting's the Anguiſh,
When the Fair pine and languiſh,
And too ſoon their Indulgence diſcover!
If the Nymph is complying,
The Swain ceaſes dying,
And the Warmth of his Paſſion is over.

II.

The beſt Way to charm him,
Is with Fears to alarm him,
To keep him in Awe, and at Diſtance;
By making him jealous,
She makes him more zealous,
And ſecures him her Slave by Reſiſtance.

To FLORELLA. On a View of her Shell-Work.

I.

WHAT Muſe, FLORELLA, or what Art
Is equal to thy Praiſe?
What Grot, ſo full of every Charm,
Did Fancy ever raiſe?

II.

Thy checquer'd Stones, thy glitt'ring Shells,
We gaze with Tranſport o'er;
Not Piles, by Incantation fram'd,
Can claim our Wonder more.

III.

The Stones which Thebes's fam'd Walls compos'd,
Tho' rang'd by Art divine,
Were not ſo elegantly choſe,
So well diſpos'd as thine.

IV.

Not IRIS, when her painted Bow
Adorns the watry Skies,
Can boaſt ſuch many-colour'd Charms,
As in thy GROTTO riſe.

V.

For Ages paſt his EDEN loſt,
In vain has Man deplor'd;
But now we ſee thy Magic Hand
Has PARADISE reſtor'd.

This Day the five following Malefactors were executed at Tyburn, viz. James Berry, Richard Cooper, Francis Woodmarſh, Richard Trap, and Ambroſe Newport.

We hear that a Squadron of 20 Ships of the Line is order'd to be commiſſion'd and fitted out for the Mediterranean with all poſſible Expedition, viz. one of 90 Guns, two of 80 Guns, ſeven of 70 Guns, and ten of 60 Guns; that the Whole is to be commanded by Sir Charles Wager, who will hoiſt his Flag on board the Namur, a 90 Gun Ship, and aſſiſted by Sir George Walton, Knt. Vice-Admiral of the White, who will hoiſt his Flag on board the Cornwall, an 80 Gun Ship; and Rear Admiral Balchen, who will hoiſt his Flag on board the Princeſs Caroline, the other 80 Gun Ship.

Yeſterday at Two in the Morning the Lady of the Rt. Hon. Other-Windſor Hickman Earl of Plymouth, and Daughter of Thomas Lewis, of Sceberton in the County of Hants, Eſq; was happily deliver'd of a Son and Heir (who is ſtiled Lord Windſor) to the inexpreſſible Joy of that antient and noble Family.

The ſame Day at a General Court of the Governors of Chriſt's-Hoſpital, a Motion was made by Mr. Alderman Child, their Preſident, to invite the Right Hon. Sir Robert Walpole, to be a Governour of the ſaid Houſe; and the ſame was unanimouſly agreed to.

'Tis written from Holland, That the new States Lottery at the Hague, will begin drawing on the 28th of June next; and that the third Claſs of the Utrecht Lottery will begin drawing on the 31ſt of this Month, O. S.

By Letters from Wincheſter, we hear that Mr. Liſle was choſen one of the Verdurers for New Foreſt in Hampſhire, by a Majority of above 600 Votes.

Robb. &c. Yeſterday Sir John Gonſon, Juſtice Railton, and ſeveral other Juſtices met at Covent Garden Veſtry, and on Examination of ſeveral idle and diſorderly Perſons, ſome of the moſt notorious of them were committed to Tothill-Fields Bridewell to hard Labour.——A Taylor, a Poulterer, and a Butcher were by the ſame Juſtices bound over to the next Weſtminſter Seſſions for being concerned with ſeveral others in a Riot on Wedneſday Night laſt, in Bridges-ſtreet and Ruſſell-ſtreet, Covent Garden.——A Conſtable of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter, was likewiſe bound over for forcing open a Door to execute a Warrant againſt a Lady of Faſhion, on pretence of not paying her Coach-hire, and other Abuſes.

Prof. Yeſterday the Governors of Chriſt's-Hoſpital made Choice of Mr. Daniel Wall to be Clerk of Bocking-Hall in Cudenhall, in the room of Mr. Collins, deceas'd.——The ſame Day Mr. Joſhua Redſhaw was choſen Meſſenger to the Iriſh Society, in the room of Mr. Hutton, deceaſed.

Death. A few Days ago died at Hitchin in Hertfordſhire, Mrs. Salmon, in a very advanc'd Age; and her Corpſe was interr'd at Mepſall in Bedfordſhire, where her Husband was formerly Miniſter: She was Daughter of John Bradſhaw, Eſq; Serjeant at Law, who on the 12th of January, 1648 was ſtiled Lord Preſident, and on the 29th of the ſame Month ſigned the Warrant for the Execution of King Charles. I.

Whereas we publiſh'd an Anſwer in this Paper to two Letters in the Daily Courant, upon the Silver Coinage of this Kingdom, we take this Opportunity to inform the Publick, that as what we did was both in true Regard to the Publick, and at the Requeſt of Philo-Patria, the Author of thoſe Letters, we think he is oblig'd, in Juſtice to his own Character, and the Intereſt of the Nation, to detect the Falſhood of our Reaſonings, and juſtify his own; or elſe he muſt excuſe us if we interpret his Silence as a Confeſſion of his Miſtake, and an Acknowledgement of our Advantage.——In the mean Time, as we have demonſtrated that the taking off the Prohibition will drain us of all our preſent Caſh, we preſume Philo-Patria ought to publiſh a probable Scheme that ſhall furniſh us with more, for fear any Concluſion ſhould be made to the Diſadvantage of his firſt Deſign.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Arrived Mails——Sunday; one from France.——Tueſday; one from Holland.

The following is a Tranſlation of a Copy of the Articles of the Treaty concluded at Vienna between the Emperor and the King of Great Britain, which the Miniſters of his Imperial Majeſty, have communicated to moſt Part of the Miniſters of the Dyet at Ratisbon.

ARTICLE I.

THAT there be now and hereafter between his Imperial and Catholick Majeſty, his Majeſty the King of Great Britain, and their Heirs, and the High and Mighty Lords, the States General of the United Provinces in the Low Countries, a firm, ſincere and inviolable Friendſhip for the common Good of the Countries and Subjects belonging to each of theſe contracting Princes; and that this Peace be ſtrengthened in ſuch a Manner, that each of the contracting Parties ſhall be obliged to protect and defend the Dominions and Subjects of the others, to maintain the Peace, and promote the Advantages of the other Contractors, as they would for themſelves: In ſhort, to prevent and obviate all Damages and Injuries of what Kind ſoever which might be done to them; for which Purpoſe all former Treaties or Conventions of Peace, Friendſhip and Alliance ſhall have, and preſerve in every Particular their full Force and Virtue, and be looked upon as renewed and confirmed by Virtue of the preſent Treaty, except only in the Articles, Clauſes, and Conditions from which it has been thought proper to derogate by the preſent Treaty: And moreover, the ſaid contracting Parties are expreſly obliged by Virtue of this Article, to a mutual Defence; or, as 'tis called, a reciprocal Guarantee of all the Kingdoms, Dominions and Eſtates, which each of them poſſeſs, and even of the Rights and Immunities which each enjoy, or ought to enjoy in ſuch a Manner, that the ſaid contracting Parties mutually declare and promiſe, that they will oppoſe with their whole Power the Enterprizes (which 'tis hoped will not happen) of all and every one that would diſturb any of the contracting Parties, their Heirs or Succeſſors, in the peaceable Poſſeſſion of the Kingdoms, Dominions, Eſtates, Countries, Lands, Rights and Immunities which each of them enjoy or ought to enjoy at the Time of the Concluſion of the preſent Treaty.

II. Furthermore, as it has been often remonſtrated, on the Part of his Imperial and Catholick Majeſty, that the Publick Tranquillity could not laſt a long Time, and that no ſure Means could be found for maintaining the Balance of Power in Europe, but a Defenſive Engagement, or, as it is called, a General Guarantee, in relation to his Imperial Majeſty, for the Order of his Succeſſion, according as it is regulated by the Imperial Declaration in the Year 1713, and receiv'd by the Serene Houſe of Auſtria; his Majeſty the King of Great Britain, and the States General of the United Provinces, moved by the ardent Deſire which they have to preſerve the Publick Tranquillity, and maintain the Balance of Power in Europe, as alſo with a View to the Conditions eſtabliſhed by the following Articles, and which are extremely proper for attaining the Deſign of both, do, by Virtue of this Article, take upon them the General Guarantee of the ſaid Order of Succeſſion, and oblige themſelves to maintain it, as often as there ſhall be Occaſion, againſt any Perſons whatſoever; and by Conſequence they promiſe, in the moſt authentic Manner that can be, to defend, maintain, and guarantee, with all their Power, and againſt any Perſons whatſoever, as often as there ſhall be Occaſion, this Order of Succeſſion, which his Imperial Majeſty has declar'd and eſtabliſh'd, by a ſolemn Act the 19th of April 1713, in Form of a Perpetual, Indiviſible, and Inſeparable Fidei Communis, in Favour of the Eldeſt, for all his Imperial Majeſty's Heirs of either Sex; which ſaid Act is joined to the End of this Treaty, and which was alſo receiv'd with a common Conſent by all the Orders and States of all the Kingdoms, Archdutchies, Principalities, Provinces, and Domains, belonging by Right of Inheritance to the Serene Houſe of Auſtria; all which humbly ſubmitted thereto, with Thanks, and have tranſcribed it into the Publick Regiſters, as having the Force of Law, and of Pragmatick Sanction, which ought to ſubſiſt forever, in its full Force. And as according to this Regulation and Order of Succeſſion, in caſe that God in his Mercy gives Male Children to his Imperial Majeſty, the Eldeſt of his Sons, or that being dead, the Eldeſt Son of the Eldeſt, and if after his Imperial Majeſty there does not remain any Male Branch deſcending from him, the Eldeſt of his Daughters, the Archdutcheſſes of Auſtria, by the Order and Right of Seniority, which has been always kept indiviſible, ought to ſucceed his ſaid Majeſty in all his Kingdoms, Provinces, and Domains, as he actually poſſeſſes them, without ever making Uſe of any Reaſon to divide or ſeparate them, in Favour of thoſe which ſhall be of the 2d, 3d, or any further Branch, or for any other Cauſe whatſoever; and this Order and Right of indiviſible Seniority, ought to be kept in all Caſes, and obſerved forever in all Ages, as well in the Male Line of his Imperial Majeſty, if God grants him any, as in the Female Line, after the Extinction of the Male Line, or, in fine, in every Caſe wherein there ſhall be any Diſpute about the Succeſſion to the Kingdoms, Provinces, and Hereditary Dominions of the Houſe of Auſtria; and for this Purpoſe his Majeſty the King of Great Britain, and the States General, promiſe and oblige themſelves to maintain thoſe that ought to ſucceed, according to the Regulation and Order ſet forth in the Kikgdoms, Provinces or Dominions which his Imperial Majeſty actually poſſeſſes, and engage themſelves to defend it for ever, againſt all thoſe who may diſturb the ſaid Poſſeſſion, in any Manner whatſoever.

III. And moreover, as it has been often repreſented to his Imperial Majeſty, in Terms full of Friendſhip on the Part of the King of Great Britain and the States General, that there was no Means more ſure for eſtabliſhing the Publick Tranquillity ſo long deſired, and to attain the ſame with the utmoſt Readineſs, than to aſſure ſtill more the Succeſſion of the Dutchies of Tuſcany, Parma, and Placentia, deſigned for the Infant Don Carlos, by introducing 6000 Men of the Troops of Spain into the fortify'd Places of the ſaid Dutchies; his ſaid Imperial Majeſty, deſiring to enter into thoſe Views, and to ſecond the pacifick Deſires of his Britannick Majeſty and the States General, will not on his Part, in any Manner oppoſe the peaceable Introduction of the ſaid 6000 Spaniards into the fortify'd Places of Tuſcany, Parma, and Placentia, in Conſequence of the Promiſes made thereupon by his Britannick Majeſty and the States General; and his Imperial Majeſty judging it neceſſary that the Empire alſo gives its Conſent thereto, promiſes that he will neglect nothing, that this Conſent may be given within the Space of two Months, or ſooner, if it be poſſible: And the more readily to obviate thoſe Troubles which threaten the Publick Peace, his Imperial Majeſty further promiſes, that as ſoon as the mutual Exchange of the Ratifications ſhall be made, he will ſignify the Conſent which he has given as Chief of the Empire for the ſaid quiet Introduction of the ſaid Troops to the Miniſter of the great Duke of Tuſcany, as well as to the Miniſter of Parma, both Reſidents at this Court, and where-ever elſe ſhall be thought proper. His ſaid Imperial Majeſty further promiſes and aſſures, that he is ſo far from raiſing or cauſing any Impediment, directly or indirectly to the receiving of the Spaniſh Garriſons into the ſaid Places, that on the contrary he will imploy his good Offices, and interpoſe his Authority for removing all Obſtacles, Difficulties, and in a Word, every Thing that may oppoſe the ſaid Introduction, and by Conſequence, that the 6000 Men of the Spaniſh Troops may be introduced quietly and without any Delay, into the fortify'd Places both in the great Dutchy of Tuſcany, and the Dutchies of Parma and Placentia.

IV. That the Articles which are thus agreed on by the irrevocable Conſent of the contracting Powers, be ſo firmly and reciprocally ſettled, and entirely decided. That the contracting Powers ſhall not be permitted to depart from them in any Manner, either in relation to what ought to be done without any Delay, and immediately after the Exchange of the Ratifications, or to what is to remain inviolable at all Times.

V. As it has been thought neceſſary in order to attain the End which the Parties contracting in this Treaty propoſe to themſelves, to root up the leaſt Seed of Diviſion or Diſſenſion, as alſo, that the ancient Friendſhip in which the contracting Parties were formerly united, may not only be renewed, but the Bond thereof may every Day become ſtronger, his Imperial Majeſty promiſes, and by Virtue of this Article obliges himſelf to cauſe to ceaſe inſtantly and for ever hereafter, all Commerce and Navigation to the Eaſt Indies, throughout the whole Extent of the Auſtrian Netherlands, and in all the other Countries, which in the Time of Charles II. King of Spain, were under the Spaniſh Government; and that he will bona fide take ſuch Meaſures, that neither the Oſtend Company nor any other either in the Auſtrian Netherlands, or in the Countries, which as aforeſaid, were under the Government of Spain, in the Time of Charles II. ſhall directly or indirectly ever act contrary to this Regulation eſtabliſhed for ever; Except that the ſaid Company may ſend only for one Time, two Veſſels, which ſhall go from the ſaid Port to the Eaſt Indies, and from thence return to Oſtend, where the ſaid Company may expoſe to Sale, if they ſhall think fit, the Merchandizes brought from the Indies. And the King of Great Britain and the States General promiſe alſo on their Part, and oblige themſelves to make, without any Delay, a new Treaty with his Imperial Majeſty, in relation to Commerce and Duties commonly called Tariff, as to what concerns the Austrian Netherlands, and according to the Intention of the Treaty commonly called called the Barrier-Treaty; and for this Purpose the contracting Parties shall speedily nominate Commissaries, who shall meet at Antwerp within the Space of two Months from the Day of the signing the present Treaty to settle every Thing which relates to the entire Execution of the said Treaty of Barrier, which was concluded at Antwerp the 17th of Nov. 1715. and of the Convention since signed at the Hague the 22d of Dec. 1728. and still more particularly to conclude there a new Treaty, as has been said, in relation to Commerce and Duties, as to what regards the Austrian Netherlands, and agreeable to the Meaning of the 26th Article of the said Treaty. It is furthermore agreed and solemnly stipulated, that every Thing which shall be thought proper to direct the said Commissaries, which are to meet at Antwerp, shall be entirely terminated with all Justice and Equity, as speedily as can be done, and in such a Manner, that the last Hand may be put to this Work at least within the Space of two Years.

VI. The Examination and Decision of the other chief Points which remain to be decided, whether between the said contracting Parties, or between any of their Confederates, requiring much more Time than can be made Use of in the critical Situation of the Publick Affairs; therefore, to avoid all Delays, which may be prejudicial to the Publick Good, it is agreed and mutually declared, that all the Treaties and Conventions, which the said contracting Powers have made with other Princes and States, may subsist as they now stand, but only as far as they are not contrary to any of the Points regulated by the present Treaty; and further, that all Disputes which now remain between the contracting Parties, or between any of their Allies whatsoever, shall be terminated amicably, as soon as possible; and to this End, the contracting Parties shall mutually labour to hinder any of those who have Differences on Foot, from supporting their Pretensions by Acts of Violence.

VII. To the End that no Doubt may remain to the Subjects of Great Britain, and those of the States General in relation to their Commerce to the Kingdom of Sicily, his Imperial Majesty has thought fit to declare, that from this Time he will look upon them in the same Manner, and upon the same Foot, as they were or ought to have been in the Time of King Charles II. of happy Memory, and as it is usual to have Regard to a Nation united to us in strict Friendship.

VIII. All those that in the Space of six Months after the Ratification of this Treaty of Peace, shall be proposed by any of the contracting Parties, with a common Consent, shall be comprehended in this Treaty of Peace.

IX. This present Treaty shall be approved and ratify'd by his Imperial Majesty, by the King of Great Britain and the States General, and the Letters of Ratification shall be given and exchanged at Vienna within the Space of six Weeks, reckoning from the Day of signing thereof.

In Witness whereof, the Imperial Commissaries, as Plenipotentiaries Extraordinary, and the Minister of the King of Great Britain, being alike furnished with full Powers, have signed this Treaty with their own Hands, and affixed their Seals thereto.

Done at Vienna the 16th of March and in the Year of our Lord 1731.

(LS) Eugene of Savoy.
